Dear Sir:

The Roanwell Corporation advises us that you have requested information regarding their stereo headphones. We are pleased to send you a copy of our May, 1963 Catalog Supplement where you will find their current model described on page 24. Our model number for these units is ADP-102 and the net price is $37.50.

You may be interested in knowing that we will soon have available Roanwell's improved model of these stereo headphones which will sell for the same price as the current model. This new model will have thicker ear cushions and better bass response but in other respects, will be similar to the present unit. These headphones will bear our Model ADP-102A and we expect to be shipping them in June.

Roanwell Headphones are widely used in the military and space fields and the stereo version we offer is identical in quality to the units used there. Due to the excellence of their engineering and construction, they are ideal for high quality music listening. If you have not yet heard stereo music through high quality headphones, an exciting experience is ahead of you.

If there is any additional information we can supply, please let us know.

Very truly yours,

HEATH COMPANY
